FOSCARINI

Its name, in Italian, comes from the shape of the front diffuser which recalls the wings of a moth, irresistibly drawn to the light. Its simple and everyday image for a discreet, essential and highly functional lamp, designed to team technical and decorative features. The diffuser is a simple metallic element folded towards the observer, embellished by cut and rounded profiles. The light source is completely screened yet diffused through an opening that directs it up and down. This makes for intense, non glaring illumination.

Even when turned off, Falena generates a discreet play of light and shadow, owing to the particular shape of the metallic diffuser. The ceiling version is available in two different sizes and in two neutral colours: white and antracite grey. The simple design, its functionality, sturdiness and dust protection, make it perfect for any setting: from contract to domestic.
